Banknotes	A round-up of news and salient issues that have affected central bankers in the last three months.	7
Why price stability is not enough	Use of short-term goals for inflation targetting is counterproductive to long-run performance, argues Stephen King of HSBC. A longer and wider outlook is needed.	15
A BIS embarrassed	A seemingly straightforward share buyback has been even more expensive than planned – and highly embarrassing for the BIS. William Hall in Zurich reports.	20
Why is the gold price rallying?	Why is the price of gold surging when many forecast deflation? David Hale looks at the role of fundamentals – and central bankers – in this apparent paradox.	23
Interview: Mladjan Dinkic	Two years of radical reforms at the National Bank have paid off with inflation at levels not seen for 20 years in Yugoslavia. However, the governor’s position in the new Serbia is not yet assured.	30
Three-part feature	What next for the ECB?
New directions for the ECB	A new president, enlargement and a review of monetary policy mean a year of fundamental choices for the ECB. Philip Lane of Trinity College Dublin surveys the options.	40
The politics of the Eurosystem	Where does the Eurosystem fit in the grand political designs of Europe? Euro-watcher Graham Bishop reports on the struggle to set the agenda for central bank accountability.	45

Reform of the stability and growth pact	Now that even the pact's defenders admit its flaws, the time has come for reform, says former Bank of England MPC member Willem Buiters. What is the way forward?	49
Leadership and management	John Mendzela, in the second of two articles on managing change in central banks, explains how central banks can measure efficiency and deliver effective reform.	59
How a central bank should talk	Central banks' suspicion of the media betrays an ignorance of how it works. Tony Morrison, of the Bank of Jamaica, reveals how central bankers can out-report the reporters.	67
The benefits of a broader Basel	Reforms to the Basel Capital Accord are misguided and will stunt growth in emerging markets, argue Stephany Griffith-Jones, Stephen Spratt and Miguel Segoviano.	71
St Helena's currency board	Recent financial management on Napoleon's place of exile offers a perfect example of how a currency board should be run, say Steve Hanke and Matt Sekerke.	77
Central role for the ECCB	Decline in tourist travel and financial sector scrutiny mean tough times for the Eastern Caribbean. Michael Imeson reports on the outlook at the ECCB after two years of recession.	82
Further problems of inflation targets	Convincing a population of the trustworthiness of inflation statistics is essential for inflation targetting. Jannie Rossouw takes a look at the latest attempts and possible solutions for ensuring this.	87
Booknotes	Forrest Capie admires Allan Meltzer's epic history of the Federal Reserve and Benedict Mander enjoys John Crow's revealing memoir "Making Money".	91
