

CONTENTS

Opinion	Reflections on Alan Greenspan	1
Greenspan's view of the world	John Berry , chief correspondent for the Washington Post, reports and assesses the current views of Alan Greenspan, a man he has known well for more than 25 years.	3
Newsmakers	Camdessus to step down? • New IMF deputy managing director • New monetary authority for East Timor? • State Bank stems capital flight • Chris Stals' banking lifeboat	14
US	Dollarisation for Central America • Y2K distortion may trip up Fed • Patching up Mexico's crumbling banks • Hedge fund regulation • No silver lining from the BIS • Situations vacant at the Fed	16
Asia	Tussle over yen policy • Malaysia's day of reckoning • Thailand turns down IMF loan • Peacekeeping in Indonesia • Easing China's restrictions on foreign banks • Banking shake up in Taiwan • Three-way Asian banking monster • "Uncontrollable deflationary spiral"	20
UK	Julius' new paradigm • Wadhvani: "Give growth a chance" • Row over MPC structure • Quadrupling of eligible collateral for Y2K • An important anniversary	24
Europe	Russian money laundering scandal • Welteke's volte-face • Sweden - the blushing bride • Euro debate rages in UK	28
Do we need a new financial architecture?	Professor Robert Mundell gives a key note speech for Central Banking on the day he was awarded his Nobel prize for Economics.	31

SPECIAL FEATURE
How the big New York banks manage risk	In this survey, Benedict Weller finds out how risk management is done at the big US banks and asks what lessons there are for central banks.	33
The new agreement on gold	Central banks have decided gold is not to be the “plaything” of the market. But have they boxed themselves in?	59
Farewell to Tietmeyer	The Bundesbank held a big party to say farewell to Hans Tietmeyer, the former president. Professor Stephen Frowen reports.	62
Regulating internet banking	We must resist the temptation to clamp down on the provision of financial services over the internet purely because it is fast-moving. Nevertheless, some big questions remain unanswered, says David Lascelles .	67
Down the Basel road	The Basel committee has produced proposals to reform the capital requirements of G10 banks, but are regulators taking a wrong turning, asks Neil Courtis ?	73
Two cheers for Rubin and Summers	The US Treasury has finally recognised the problem with pegged exchange rates.	77
Booknotes	The Social Market Economy and Monetary Stability • The Greenspan Effect • The Millennium in Gold 1000 - 1999	79