

CONTENTS

Opinion	What future for governors • Nursing the euro	1
News in brief	World Bank seeks funds online • Don Brash on the Web • Fischer warns bondholders... • ...and rejects limited role for IMF • Eurex overtakes CBOT • Unshackling the MPC • Problems with Bank's fan-chart • Bank ends mortgage perk • No interest in Pakistan • Repay day for LTCM	4
Newsmakers	Christmas gift for Greenspan • Frenkel steps down... • Klein is new governor • New Venezuelan governor • Departure of a gadfly • Indonesia trouble • From governor to premier • New board members at MAS • Sad farewell to Reimut Jochimsen	6
US notes	Fed rethinks disclosure policy • US dollarisation legislation • Ecuador's bitter Better	9
Europe notes	Greece gears up for euro entry • Changes in "two pillar" policy? • Taking Europe's temperature • New FX policy for Turkey • Dutch sell gold • Swiss overhaul of monetary policy • At last, the Volcker report • MPC unsettling the markets • Bank meets the regions • The cost of joining Emu	11
Asia notes	New Zealand states new policy targets • Reserve Bank to use CPI for inflation target • Defence of Pakistan's deposit freeze • Hong Kong buys euros for its reserves • Malaysian central bank in the spotlight • BoJ takes a dose of its own medicine • China's 'main tool' of monetary policy	16
Banque de France Bicentenary	The Banque de France is celebrating its 200th anniversary this year with an exciting programme of festivities. Peter Gaskell reports from the opening events in Paris.	19
France's financial elite	Alumni from "les Grandes Ecoles" exert unparalleled influence over French state-capitalism. But globalisation, privatisation and fast changing technology are now challenging the status quo, argues Peter Gaskell .	23
Governance in central banks	A quiet revolution has overtaken the world's central banks. A new survey by Central Banking reveals that in most central banks key monetary policy decisions are now taken by committees. Benedict Weller and Neil Courtis report. At a time when many governments are in a process of reforming legislation governing their central banks, this article by Rosa Lastra and Geoffrey Wood analyses the difficulty in reconciling independence with adequate accountability.	29 34

Reflections on Black Wednesday	The events of September 1992, when speculators forced 40 the UK to devalue, continue to reverberate in Whitehall and the City. Norman Lamont, the former UK chancellor of the exchequer, blames the Bundesbank for the crisis. This, argues Stephen Frowen , does a disservice to the Bundesbank and Helmut Schlesinger.	40
Bank of England	The Bank of England's powerful monetary policy committee meet each month to set interest rates. John Vickers, the Bank's chief economist, gives Patrick Hosking a fly-on-a-wall perspective on proceedings.	46
Croatian National Bank	Following Croatia's parliamentary and presidential elections in January, some observers predicted a marked change in policy, particularly towards the exchange rate. Dr. Marko Skreb, governor of the Croatian National Bank, puts the record straight.	50
Tokyo Diary	Robert Pringle in Japan.	56
Royal Mint	The United Kingdom's Royal Mint faces one of the biggest challenges in its 1,114-year history. The deputy master, Roger Holmes, talked to Assistant Editor Neil Courtis .	62
Deutsche Bank	Rolf-E Breuer, the spokesman of the Board of Deutsche Bank, discusses the future of banking and securities market in Germany and of Frankfurt as a "powerful regional centre"	66
Ludwig Bamberger	Ludwig Bamberger was a key figure in the creation of a single financial market in Germany in the nineteenth century, setting up Deutsche Bank and paving the way for the reichsmark, direct ancestor of the deutschmark. Benedikt Koehler sees many parallels with European monetary union.	72
Information Centres	In a new survey, Central Banking focuses on one of the most important departments of a central bank – the library.	77