

CONTENTS

COMMENT	Taking a stand on financial stability	1
NEWS	Cox set to replace Donaldson at SEC • “Disaster” credit products warning • Citigroup’s troubles continue • Berlin steamed up over hedge funds • Credit rating industry “on watch” • ABN Amro gets a boost from Consob... • ... while BBVA is opposed • Protectionism showdown in September • European Parliament backs law to ease cross-border deals • Appointments • SEC backs new stock trading rules • NYSE traders face fraud charges • Problems at world’s biggest insurer • Further concerns of the regulators • Ebbers guilty of $11bn fraud • More criticism of mortgage companies • Shake-up for actuaries • Auditors fight back • FSA wields new powers • Abbey faces endowment fine • Underwriters told to improve ... • ... but criticism of FSA is growing • FSA rejects charge of “over-regulation”... • ...but agrees to study costs • Deutsche B&E backs off • Credit risk transfer • Counting the costs of Sarbanes-Oxley • Caruana: Basel II implementation difficult • Compromise possible with IASB • Getting Japan on board • Keeping investors in the dark • Work together to fight fraud, IOSCO tells members • New guidelines for insurers • BoJ worried by banks’ risk-taking	3
NEWS ANALYSIS	Commission tests merger barriers Europe’s politicians plan to get tough on regulators who cosset national champions. Sergio Beristain reports on the row brewing over barriers to cross-border mergers.	17
	Standards rise offshore According to the IMF, financial regulation in offshore centres is improving. Nick Carver reports.	21
REGULATORY ACCOUNTABILITY	Regulatory accountability: dos and don’ts Fears about loss of control mean that too few financial regulators enjoy real independence. In fact, argue Eva Hüpkes, Marc Quintyn and Michael Taylor, such agencies can be kept “under control” and accountable with some simple dos and don’ts.	23
BASEL II	Basel II: a leap of faith Despite six years of effort, Basel II’s real impact remains unknown. Implementing the new accord may require a leap of faith, says John Hawke, Jr.	31

THE Financial Regulator

Volume 10 Number 1 – June 2005

IFRS	Can Basel II and IFRS get on? Accounting numbers prepared under IFRS can have perverse effects on bank balance sheets and regulatory capital. Hans Blommestein considers how EU regulators can work around the problem.	35
NEW ZEALAND	The limits to hospitality With 85% of banking assets owned by Australian banks, New Zealand is the ultimate “host” jurisdiction. Can the interests of Australian shareholders, and New Zealand depositors, be squared? Ian Woolford and Adrian Orr examine efforts to improve supervisory relations across the Tasman sea.	41
MONEY LAUNDERING	Interview: Alain Damais Alan Damais, executive secretary of the Financial Action Task Force on money laundering, spoke exclusively to Paul Brione about the task force’s global agenda and moves to expand membership.	47
ASSET BUBBLES	How an asset valuation committee could prick price bubbles To help avoid booms and busts in asset prices, regulators and central banks should announce publicly when markets are dangerously over- or under-priced. John Calverly explains how an asset valuation committee would work.	54
HEDGE FUNDS	Hedge funds and credit risk Increasingly, hedge funds make their money by trading tranches of credit risk with investment banks. But how well do banks know their hedge fund customers? Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan recently sounded a note of caution.	59
BOOKNOTES	And the Money Kept Rolling in (and Out): Wall Street, the IMF, and the Bankrupting of Argentina By Paul Blustein. Reviewed by Michael Taylor	66
	Regulation and Development By Jean-Jacques Laffont. Reviewed by Graham Bannock	69