

CONTENTS

| | | |
|------------------------|--|-----------|
| COMMENT | Put the brakes on money-laundering regulation | 1 |
| NEWS | Riggs fined $25m • Basel II published • Dubai regulators fired • Bank of England begins its defence in BCCI case • New regulator for Taiwan • Martha Stewart to appeal against jail term • JPMorgan boosts funds for lawsuits • Watchdog will extend Equitable Life probe • Review of the actuarial profession • Mannesmann executives cleared • BaFin wants progress on reforms • China's auction of non-performing loans • Russian central bank moves to halt crisis ... • ... and targets warring tycoons • Sex and the City • Continuing controversy over accounting rules • IAS 39 • "Plumber" claims compensation for aborted trial • Parmalat saga continues • Split caps and the "magic circle" • Hedge funds and the SEC • Halliburton pays out in SEC probe • Growing criticism of Sarbanes-Oxley • FSA makes concession on capital rules... • ... and EC follows Basel • Paying out for EU safeguards • Primus inter pares? • End of a takeover battle • Link between Singapore and Kuala Lumpur exchanges • EC tries to end dispute over Czech bank aid • "Outsourcing in Financial Services" • FATF annual report • No pay out for peso exchange | 3 |
| NEWS ANALYSIS | OCC fumbles over "bank of presidents" The OCC has been in the dock following a scandal at Washington's Riggs bank. Heidi Schooner asks whether the regulator has got its priorities right. | 17 |
| | Learning to handle Basel II Banking supervisors around the world are gearing up to implement the new capital accord. Nick Carver reports on help on offer. | 20 |
| CALLUM McCARTHY | Interview: Callum McCarthy The UK financial services industry fails to give consumers a fair deal. Callum McCarthy, chairman of the UK Financial Services Authority, intends to change that. Interview with the editor. | 23 |

THE Financial Regulator

Volume 9 Number 2 – September 2004

| | |
|-----------------------------|---|
| MONEY LAUNDERING | Overhaul needed for US laundering controls 31 |
| | America's existing anti-money-laundering apparatus does not work. An urgent, system-wide overhaul is required, argues US congresswoman, Sue Kelly. |
| | Avoiding the technology trap 34 |
| | Too many banks rely on technology to prevent money laundering. Intelligent, human vigilance is needed argue James Backhouse and Ian Angell of the London School of Economics. |
| TWIN PEAKS | Straddling twin peaks 39 |
| | Can "twin peaks" regulators, one for consumer protection another for prudential regulation, work together? David Knott, imagines there may be friction. |
| INTERNET FRAUD | Catching the phishermen 47 |
| | Fraudulent "phishing" e-mails which dupe bank customers into revealing personal information have become an international problem. Neil Courtis reports on attempts to tackle it. |
| BASEL II | Basel II overview 50 |
| | On 26 June 2004, the Basel committee released the final version of the new capital accord. This overview details key changes and work still to be done. |
| | Fear of falling capital 56 |
| | Concerned about potentially large falls in regulatory capital requirements, Basel II gives supervisors discretion to alter capital charges. Harald Benink suggests an alternative approach. |
| | US moves slowly to Basel II 60 |
| | The road to Basel II implementation in the United States remains rocky. Politics may yet set the US on a different path to the rest of the world reports Neil Courtis. |
| HEDGE FUNDS | Hedge fund spat splits commission 62 |
| | Opposed by two fellow commissioners, SEC Chairman William Donaldson has proposed requiring hedge fund advisors to register with the commission. Richard Hizo reports. |
| BOOKNOTES | Regulating the Financial Sector in the Era of Globalisation 67 |
| | Reviewed by Graham Bannock. |
| | Too Big to Fail: the hazards of bank bailouts |
| | Reviewed by Paul Brione. |